Quarter report

1. Market review

For over a year, the financial crisis originating from the US housing market has dominated happenings on the financial markets, and an end is not in sight. While market players were still afraid of rising inflation rates in the first half of the year, in the meantime worries about the effects on the growth of the global economy have moved to the fore. Consumption and economic growth are on the decline in the USA and Europe, unemployment is rising and the downwards spiral in certain real estate markets (USA, UK and Spain) is unbroken. Events in the banking sector have escalated in the past few weeks, resulting in bankruptcies, nationalisation and involuntary mergers. The interest rates for government bonds fell, the risk mark-ups for corporate bonds reached new peaks, banks reduced their granting of loans and profit expectations had to be lowered further. This led to price losses in all risk-prone asset classes and to a flight into safe securities (government bonds, gold).

2. Performance review

These developments resulted in positive earnings for bond markets across all currency areas, measured in government bonds. One exception is the CHF market, which was quoted nearly unchanged over the period under review. In the period under review, the fund was outpaced by the benchmark. Above all, the overweight in corporate bonds within the bonds area was negative. The credit premiums expanded to new peaks, leading to clearly lower yields from corporate bonds than from government bonds.

Note concerning performance

Past performance is no indication of future performance and does not guarantee success in the future. The performance data assume that any dividends will be reinvested and do not take account of commission and costs charged for issuing and redemption of units. The calculation is performed in the fund's currency of account CHF. Returns in other currencies may rise or fall as a result of currency fluctuations.

3. Outlook

Even in the event of a successful implementation of the US administration's package to prevent the failure of further banks, the fears of a global recession spreading from the USA are not unfounded. In particular, the rise in the unemployment rate and the expected decline in consumption accompanying this give cause for concern. As a result of the striking correction in commodity prices and consequently the diminishing inflationary pressure, the central banks have at least more scope again for supporting the level of business activity by means of monetary policy measures. Against this background, we are holding a slightly longer duration in EUR and USD than in the corresponding benchmarks. Further corporate bonds are only being bought in very selectively and preferably from new issues.

Opportunities/risks

All investments involve risk, especially with regard to fluctuations in value and returns. In addition, investments in foreign currencies are subject to exchange rate fluctuations. The risks are described in detail in the sales prospectus.
