- Allianz Emerging Europe Equity¹⁾ - Because of the current and ever-evolving circumstances associated with the Ukraine / Russia situation, the current political situation and liquidity constraints caused by the ongoing closure of the Moscow stock exchange for international investors and various sanctions imposed on the financial markets, it is currently not possible to perform a proper valuation of the assets of the Fund. Consequently, and after careful consideration, the Board of Directors came to the conclusion that it is in the best interest of the shareholders to temporarily suspend the calculation of the net asset value and subsequently the dealing of shares.

The Board of Directors of the Company decided to temporarily suspend the calculation of the Net Asset Value of the Fund with effect from 28 February 2022. This decision was taken on 1st of March and the calculation of the NAV is still suspended as of 31 March 2024.

The uncertainty for a valuation of assets is currently related to the Russian equities held by the fund. In order to calculate the All-in-Fee payable to the management company, the Russian equities and sight deposits have been valued with zero. All other assets are valued according to the standard valuation principles. The last redemption and subscription prices has been calculated at 28.02.2022.

A separate pool of assets and separate accounting records are maintained for each Subfund.

The figures presented in this report relate to the period from 1 October 2023 to 31 March 2024. They should not necessarily be taken as an indication of the future development of the Subfunds.

Subscriptions are only valid if made on the basis of the current Prospectus, the Articles of Incorporation, the Key Investor Information Document supplemented by the latest available audited Annual Report. If the latest Annual Report was published more than eight months ago, then the most recent Semi-Annual Report must also be made available.

The Prospectus, the Articles of Incorporation, the Key Investor Information Document as well as the respective Annual and Semi-Annual Reports can be obtained at the registered office of the Company or from the Management Company, the Custodian and each Paying and Information Agent without charge.

Some transactions conducted in the reporting period do no longer appear in the Investment Portfolio. The Statement of Changes in the composition of the securities portfolio during the reference period is available free of charge on request at the registered office of the Company and at the representatives where the Subfunds are distributed.

Important notice to our Shareholders

The conflict between Russia and Ukraine is not just affecting political relations, but is also having an impact on the economy. Both the sanctions imposed on Russia and other geopolitical developments led to more expensive and scarcer energy, higher inflation and interest rates, and supply chain problems during the reporting period. These effects are also reflected in capital markets, where prices are influenced by market and stock exchange values. The global economy and capital markets continue to face high levels of uncertainty.

The Economic Sanctions issued against the Russian Federation, the separatist regions of Donetsk People's Republic and Luhansk People's Republic, and Belarus are constantly evolving. AllianzGI is complying with all relevant current and intends to comply with all relevant future sanctions including but not limited to those imposed by the EU, Japan, Singapore, South Korea, Switzerland, UK and US. All trades that AllianzGI sends to its counterparties comply with AllianzGI's obligations under the relevant sanctions.

AllianzGI has a globally coordinated economic sanctions team from the Legal, Compliance and Risk functions that monitors economic sanctions and coordinates their implementation. This team is actively monitoring the current situation and has been working with impacted departments, including portfolio management, trading and operations, to take relevant action and ensure timely implementation. In particular, the team is coordinating the implementation of the multi-jurisdictional sanctions against the Russian Federation, the separatist regions of Donetsk People's Republic and Luhansk People's Republic and Belarus.

AllianzGI has policies, procedures and systems in place to screen new and existing investors against applicable sanctions lists. In relation to Article 5f of Regulation (EU) No 833/2014 and Article 1y of Regulation (EC) No 765/2006, AllianzGI has decided to stop selling any fund units/shares or securities to Russian and Belarussian nationals after 12 April 2022. In this regard, AllianzGI has instructed its distribution partners, fund platforms and service providers such as transfer agents to stop distributing fund units/shares to Russian and Belarussian nationals. Where Russian or Belarussian nationals hold units/shares in funds before 12 April 2022, AllianzGI has instructed their service providers to block the investor's account for subscriptions and other transactions which would constitute a sale of fund units/shares.

Economic situation and capital market in the reporting period/outlook

Growth confidence and interest rate hopes spur on

As at the end of March 2024, in the half-year under review the global economy remained robust. The continuing expansion of the US economy was the main source of positive momentum, while the expectation of sustained momentum from advanced technologies also boosted corporate sentiment.

At the same time, it seemed likely that the rise in key interest rates in developed economies would come to an end and could even be reversed in some cases. Investment appetite and consumer demand benefited from this in equal measure.

In the United States in particular, there were early hopes of an imminent easing of monetary policy. Although demand on the US labour market remained high, the inflationary pressure from wages eased. Inflationary pressure also lost momentum in Europe thanks in part to the relatively weak economy, particularly in Germany.

Emerging markets continued to be characterised by more independent economic trends. This was reflected, for instance, in the diverging interest rate policy and monetary policy as well as the growing importance of domestic demand in many places. However, the recovery of the Chinese economy was significantly slower than initially expected.

Equities: Prices mostly rising, but with regional differences

The global equity markets benefited from the continuing robust growth trend in the US, as well as the simultaneous easing of inflation concerns and the expectation that interest rates will fall again in the future.

Prices on the US equity market rose at a particularly strong rate, with the upward trend being driven primarily by technology-oriented companies. In euro terms, the increase in US equities was somewhat lower because the dollar depreciated moderately. There was also a considerable price upturn in Japan. This was helped by the fact that the Bank of Japan signalled the end of years of crippling deflation with a slight tightening of monetary policy.

The rise in prices in Europe was not quite as pronounced, but still significant. In particular, German standard values of companies that are mainly active on the global market achieved above-average price increases, while the domestic economy languished.

Although rising prices also predominated on the emerging markets, the upward trend was weaker overall than in developed economies. Momentum was curbed in particular by the modest economic recovery in China. Stock exchanges there also developed negatively overall, bucking the global trend.

Volatility – i.e. the average fluctuation range of equity prices – declined on balance. This was reflected in the easing of concerns about inflation and recession, coupled with an increasing risk appetite among market participants.

Bonds: Yields and spreads trending downwards

Developments in the global bond markets were largely favourable. The tighter monetary policy in the developed countries was reflected in a further decline in price increases, even though the core rate of inflation in the US in particular only gradually declined in view of the continued resilience of the economy. Against this backdrop, there were increasing expectations on the bond markets of an imminent turnaround in monetary policy, with central banks also hinting at this.

As a further rise in interest rates was considered unlikely, many investors took the opportunity to secure the yield level achieved in high-quality government and corporate bonds. At the same time, an optimistic assessment of the global economic picture led to continued purchasing interest in high-interest and emerging market securities with attractive yield premiums. Demand for emerging markets bonds from the dollar zone was further supported by the weakening of the US currency.

Outlook

Equities

The global economic environment continues to favour the international stock markets. Economic data, as measured by the Macro Broad Growth Index from Allianz Global Investors, improved on a broad regional basis for the fourth consecutive month in March. The growth in the developed economies was primarily due to a strong recovery in the Eurozone and somewhat improved data in the US. Values also rose in the emerging markets, with Chinese indicators rising for the seventh consecutive month. Overall, the data suggests that global gross domestic product (GDP) growth is likely to be close to potential growth in the first half of the year. However, this encouraging outlook is offset by a deterioration in inflation data, with labour demand in the US remaining high. This is likely to curb the US Federal Reserve's willingness to cut interest rates. As equity valuations appear quite high in many places, corrections cannot be ruled out in the event of a deterioration in corporate earnings trends, a sharp deterioration in the economic environment or geopolitical shocks following the strong price gains in recent months.

Outlook for bonds

The strength of the US economy and the monetary policy of the central banks are likely to remain a decisive factor for the bond markets. The March data in the US was robust enough to prompt a U-turn in expectations of interest rate cuts among market participants. Only one or two interest rate cuts by the US Federal Reserve in 2024 are now "priced in." This reassessment has recently driven US government bond yields to new annual highs. By contrast, yields on German government bonds have risen to a lesser extent, meaning that the difference between ten-year yields in the US and Germany has widened. This reflects the expectation that the European Central Bank (ECB), encouraged by declining core inflation in the Eurozone and weaker growth prospects, will make a total of three interest rate cuts from June until the end of the year. However, an opposite trend is also conceivable in the event that a possible energy price shock caused by an escalation of the conflict in the Middle East gives inflation a new boost. Although the overall environment for bonds is therefore somewhat uncertain, interest-bearing investments should remain in demand. They offer solid yield prospects and, due to their defensive characteristics, are likely to benefit in the event of turbulence on the capital markets or geopolitical crises.
