Fund management comment

The battle against inflation raised new concerns, as numbers are not as good as expected. Anticipated rate decreases have been postponed and this had a significant negative impact on equities and bonds. The strategy mainly suffered from its long positions on developed equities and bonds (except for US rates thanks to limited exposure). On the other hand, its long USD vs G10 exposure enabled to compensate part of the losses. Also, long positions on metals were beneficial, especially industrial metals. Allocation has been significantly decreased on bonds and further amplified on USD. Industrial metals weight has been also largely increased following the very strong performance in line with the good state of the economy.

Risks

Risk of capital loss: Investments realised in funds are subject to market fluctuations and to inherent risks to investments in stocks. The value generated by these investments can be profits or losses and it is possible that investors do not recover the totality of their invested capital. The funds described in this documents display a risk of capital loss.

Equity risk: The fund is synthetically exposed to European equity markets. Unitholders are therefore exposed to declines in these equity markets.

Model risk: The model used to determine the asset allocation for each Strategy Index portfolio is based on a quantitative approach. There is a risk that the model will not be efficient as there is no guarantee that the indicators defined will be relevant in the future.

Counterparty Risk: This risk is associated with the ability of a counterparty in a financial transaction to fulfill its commitments like payment, delivery and reimbursement.

Risk related to the use of forward financial instruments: In order to achieve its investment objective, the Sub-Fund makes use of forward financial instruments traded over-the-counter that allow it to replicate the performance of the strategy. These instruments may involve a series of risks that could lead to adjustments or even the early termination of the instrument, which may affect the Sub-Fund's NAV.
