  restrictions on currency convertibility, the imposing of taxes or controls on transactions, the limitations of property rights or other legal risks. Investments in less developed financial markets may expose the Fund to increased operational, legal and political risk.
  Sustainability risks: Sustainability risks are environmental, social or governance events or conditions that can have a material negative effect on the return, depending on the relevant sector, industry and company exposure.

<sup>4</sup> The risk indicator assumes you keep the Product for 5 years. The actual risk can vary significantly if you redeem at an early stage and you may get back less. The Summary Risk Indicator is a guide to the level of risk of this Product compared to other products. It shows how likely it is that the Product will lose money because of movements in the markets. Be aware of currency risk if your reference currency differs from the currency of the Product. You may receive payments in a different currency, so the final return you will get depends on the exchange rate between the two currencies. Investors shall note that the Product may be exposed to further risks such as operational, counterparty, political, sustainability and legal risks that are not included in the Summary Risk Indicator. This Product does not include any protection from future market performance so you could lose some or all of your investment.

<sup>5</sup> If the currency of a financial product and/or its costs is different from your reference currency, the return and cost may increase or decrease as a result of currency fluctuations.

Outlook

The global high yield markets have generated positive returns in the first quarter of 2024. Coupons have contributed to the vast majority of returns while bond prices have lost momentum following the significant rally in the fourth quarter of 2023. Inflation data in the United States has surprised to the upside and interest rates in the world's I economy will remain higher for longer. Despite a backdrop of widening government bond yields, high-yield bonds have held in quite well and spreads have continued to tighten. In our view, the strong technical in the asset class has supported bond prices, most notably low primary issuance volume and a reduction in the amount of high-yield bonds outstanding. Retail mutual fund flows have also stabilized and we believe investors have elevated cash balances. Importantly, the fundamentals of high yield issuers remain sound and we aren't expecting a material uptick in distressed activity this year. We are mindful of rising geopolitical tensions in the Middle East, a ceaseless war in Ukraine, and slowly evolving cracks in commercial real estate markets. The health of issuer balance sheets gives us comfort amid the outportunity through improved carry return and price upside potential. We believe credit selection is paramount to capture that opportunity as the impacts of higher cost of capital, among other risks, spread through the global economy.

It is not possible to invest in an index. The index returns shown do not represent the results of actual trading of investable assets/securities. Investors pursuing a strategy similar to an index may experience higher or lower returns and will bear the cost of fees and expenses that will reduce returns.
