Performance

Indexed value (until 28-02-2022) - Source: Robeco

Performance

Based on transaction prices, the fund's return was -4.02%.

Robeco Chinese Equities was roughly in line with the index in February. Positive sector contributions came from our overweights in healthcare and utilities. Negative contributions came from our underweights in materials and financials. The main contributors were China State Construction International, Genscript Biotech, Alibaba, Tofflon Science & Technology and Inner Mongolia Yili Industrial. The main detractors were Meituan, Contemporary Amperex Technology, Man Wah, Li Auto and Tencent.

Market development

Offshore Chinese indices corrected in February. Concerns on the slowdown of the economy, further tightening of the internet sector, and rising geopolitical risks led to more risk-off in the market. Property sales and retail data from the Chinese New Year holiday period pointed to signs of continued weakness in the economy. Concerns of an Omicron breakout in China blurred the near-term outlook further.

Expectation of fund manager

We have a relatively constructive view on Chinese equities, but the market could be volatile given the potential property sector impact, geopolitical risks and Covid-19 resurgences in 2022. While we expect the government to accelerate the growth-supportive policies, such as easing of the property sector and a further step-up on infrastructure investment, economic growth will likely only find its bottom in 2H2022, adding uncertainties to the market's near-term performance. China's policy is changing from regulatory tightening to supporting growth. Deleveraging and decarbonization will take a back seat in the short term, as reasonable growth (i.e. 5% or more) would likely be the bottom line, since the priority is now stability. More macro policy support could come, with proactive fiscal policy and prudent monetary policy with ample liquidity. There could be faster fiscal spending, new tax and fee cuts, and some infrastructure investment advances. A largely stable headline fiscal deficit and new special local government bond quota, together with modestly stronger infrastructure investments in 2022 are expected.

Top 10 largest positions

The alternative energy and EV industries continue to experience explosive growth, and our positions in industry leaders China Longyuan Power and BYD are among our top ten holdings. Our consumption upgrade theme is well represented in the top ten, with Tencent, Meituan, JD.com and Inner Mongolia Yili. We expect these stocks to be strong beneficiaries from this trend. Industry upgrading is also a key secular growth driver of the Chinese economy, and we invest in manufacturing leaders such as Sunny Optical. We expect the government to adopt easing measures for the property sector, and CR Land would benefit from this.

Investment policy

Robeco Chinese Equities is an actively managed fund that invests in listed stocks of leading Chinese companies. The selection of these stocks is based on fundamental analysis. The fund's objective is to achieve a better return than the index. The fund promotes ESG (i.e. Environmental, Social and corporate Governance) characteristics within the meaning of Article 8 of the European Sustainable Finance Disclosure Regulation and integrates ESG and sustainability risks in the investment process. In addition, the fund applies an exclusion list on the basis of controversial behavior, products (including controversial weapons, tobacco, palm oil and fossil fuel) and countries, next to voting and engaging. The fund identifies attractive macro-economic themes and selects fundamentally sound companies. Both offshore (Hong Kong and US listed) and, to a limited extent, domestic Chinese stocks are selected. The majority of stocks selected will be components of the Benchmark, but stocks outside the Benchmark may be selected too. The investment policy is not constrained by a Benchmark but the fund may use a benchmark for comparison purposes. The fund can deviate substantially from the issuer, country and sector weightings of the Benchmark. There are no restrictions on the deviation from the Benchmark. The Benchmark is a broad market weighted index that is not consistent with the ESG characteristics promoted by the fund.
