Market Review

The TOPIX Net Total Return was up by +1.5%, returning better than global equities, up by +0.7% in yen terms. The market rotated into a growth style, reverting from the previous month. Mega-cap growth was up by +4% while mega-cap value was down by -1%. The TOPIX REIT index was down by -3%. The yen strengthened by 2% to JPY133 per US dollar. The Information Technology sector led the market gaining +5%, as the Semiconductor segment jumped by another +6% and became the best-performing industry for this quarter, returning +27%. The Financials sector tanked by -9% amidst the global banking turmoil in the US and in Europe but also expectations of lower inflation globally in the coming quarters, wiping out its year-to-date gain until mid-March. The Tokyo headline CPI slightly eased to 3.3% year on year but came in above the consensus. The Japanese Trade Union Confederation (Rengo) which covers less than 20% of workers announced its first round of wage rate revision. The headline increase was 3.8%, of which the base pay is set to increase by 2.3%, the strongest growth over the last three decades. BoJ’s manufacturing Tankan sharply declined on a weak demand outlook, while non-manufacturing continued to improve on belated reopening and expectation on inbound tourism recovery.

Fund Review

The fund outperformed the benchmark thanks to positive stock selection. Sector allocation was negative mainly due to an overweight in Financials which was offset by a good positioning within the sector. The overall impact of the tech rally was neutral thanks to semi materials exposure within Materials even though the exposure to the semiconductor industry was limited. The main contributors were Sumitomo Bakelite, Murata Manufacturing and East Japan Railway. Sumitomo Bakelite further gained +10%, surging by a third year-to-date. Murata also gained +10% as the market expects bottoming out of inventory adjustment. East Japan Railway +7% served its role as a defensive name during the banking turmoil. The main detractors were the banks Mizuho Financial Group and Resona Holdings as well as the life insurance company Japan Post Insurance that tanked by low teen percentages amidst the financial turmoil. Three names newly joined the portfolio. Kansai Paint, a mid-size painting company with a large presence in Japan, India and Europe, was initiated earlier in the month as auto production is expected to recover and the input cost to decline. The position was topped up at a public offering benefitting from a lower share price. Nomura Research Institute, one of the largest IT system integrators domestically, was initiated as the company is well-positioned to benefit from digital transformation/software investments. The share price tanked after its major shareholders reduced their stakes last November and remained at a similar level on weak results due to cost issues at its newly acquired overseas business. At the current level, the valuation looks attractive for a top-quality company. Mitsubishi Shokuhin, the largest food wholesaler in Japan, also join the portfolio for being a beneficiary of food inflation, its asset-light operation and attractive valuation. Amid continuous inflation, the team continues to favour companies with strong pricing power to absorb cost inflation and maintain prices beyond. Companies benefitting from lower raw material cost are also played. Cash is at the maintenance level. The ESG profile is broadly unchanged and continues to outperform the benchmark, comparing particularly favourable in its carbon emission intensity.

Outlook

Consensus earnings estimates for the TOPIX were down by 1% for FY22 & FY23 respectively. The EPS growth is expected to grow by 7% in FY23. Even if domestic activities are likely to pick up along with the border reopening, inflation should weigh on consumption. The visibility of the manufacturing sector is quite low due to the global economic outlook. TOPIX valuations are at 12.6x 12-month forward P/E, 1.18x P/B and 2.5% dividend yield. The Fund is trading at 13.4x, 1.25x and 2.5% respectively broadly in line with the market but focusing on reasonably priced free cash flow generators. The team is keeping eye on quality names with reasonable valuations that can weather the economic uncertainty.
