Strategy Description and Objective

The Portfolio's investment objective is to replicate the performance of the Modified Strategy Goldman Sachs D266 on the Bloomberg Commodity Index Total Return which seeks to outperform the Bloomberg Commodity Index Total Return, while keeping the same weight for each commodity as of the yearly rebalancing. The Portfolio seeks to achieve its objective by (i) entering into a swap agreement for participation in the Modified Strategy Goldman Sachs D266 on the Bloomberg Commodity Index Total Return and (ii)(a) entering into a reverse repurchase agreement with a financial institution or (b) purchasing an asset portfolio of US Government Treasury Bills.

The Modified Strategy Goldman Sachs D266 on the Bloomberg Commodity Index Total Return seeks to outperform the Bloomberg Commodity Index Total Return by making certain adjustments to the methodology for calculating that index, in particular, the procedure by which certain of the constituent futures contracts are rolled forward, in order to apply certain dynamic, timing and seasonal rolling rules. These adjustments are intended to enhance the performance of the strategy over that of the index, but there can be no assurance that these adjustments will have the desired effect and it is possible that these adjustments could actually result in the strategy underperforming the index.

The index, the Bloomberg Commodity Index Total Return, is designed to provide investors with a diversified benchmark for the commodity markets and is currently composed of futures contracts on 24 physical commodities. The index, and therefore the strategy, is not exposed to each constituent commodity contract equally.

Monthly Commentary

The BCOMTR index was up +2.69% in April.

The Energy Sector The Energy complex (BCOMEN Index -0.12%) inched lower in April. In Crude Oil, both Brent (BCOMCO Index +0.21%) and WTI (BCOMCL Index -0.45%) started the month with a rally driven by increasing optimism about the demand outlook and heightened geopolitical tensions. Early in the month, Brent futures briefly traded above $92/bbl, their highest level since October, propelled by escalating conflicts in the Middle East, Ukrainian drone attacks on one of Russia's major oil refineries, and strong physical fundamentals. Prompt spreads, such as the May24 vs. Jun24 WTI, and the Jun24 vs July24 Brent, widened, reflecting tightening near-term balance expectations and improved demand projections, particularly in China. Adding to the bullish sentiment, Pemex cancelled contracts to supply its flagship crude oil to refiners in Europe, the US, and Asia. At the OPEC+ meeting, no recommendations were made to alter the group's oil output policy. However, midway through the month, prompt crude prices retreated after larger-than-expected builds in crude storage, with US inventories nearing levels last seen in June 2023. Towards the end of April, prices and volatility eased following a perceived de-escalation in the Israel-Iran conflict, with Iran downplaying Israel's response to its earlier drone attack. Additionally, Mexico's state oil company reversed its earlier crude export announcement for May due to lower-than-expected demand from domestic refineries. In Products, US Diesel (BCOMGO Index -2.63%) demand has fallen off a cliff over data from the EIA showing builds in the US and Europe as well as an ease in geopolitical premium despite hits on Russian refining capacity. Natural Gas (BCOMNG Index, -12.20%) slumped amidst smaller than expected draws reported by the EIA and softer demand following warmer weather forecasts.

The Precious Metals sector In Precious Metals (BCOMPR Index +3.59%), the eye-popping rally continued, with Gold (BCOMGC Index +2.88%) breaking its all-time-high, briefly touching $2,431.52/oz on the 12th of April. The precious metal famously seen as a safe haven asset outperformed again, despite market sentiment that rates will stay higher for longer. This remarkable move was attributed to several factors including heightened geopolitical tensions, a surge in retail buying in Asia, and significant Central Bank buying, as CBs are increasingly looking to diversify their reserves away from the US Dollar, to mitigate the risk of being affected by international sanctions. Despite this surge, the reaction from the investor community in gold-backed ETFs appeared mixed. Data showed that total gold ETF holdings declined by -1.38% month-over-month. Meanwhile, trading activity in both futures and options increased, and CFTC data showed that Managed Money longs were above their 3-year average. Silver (BCOMSI Index +5.93%) rallied in sympathy with its yellow counterpart.

The Industrial Metals sector The Industrial Metals (BCOMIN Index +13.37%) complex surged in April, following UK and US sanctions on Russian metal exports, sparking gains across all metals in the index. Copper (BCOMHG Index +13.26%) hit $10,000 a ton for the first time in two years as speculation built that the world's mine will struggled to meet a coming wave of demand from green transition technologies and infrastructure. The red metal reclaimed its historic level as mine supply risked to tilt the market into a major deficit. Aluminium (BCOMAL Index +10.20%) and Zinc (BCOMZS Index +20.16%) prices also rallied sharply as data from the LME showed fresh cancellations of warrants from warehouses, after announcements of new US and UK sanctions on Russian aluminium. Nickel (BCOMNI Index +14.53%) and Lead (BCOMPB Index +7.35%) edged higher throughout the month in line with the overall complex and tightness from the aforementioned headlines on Russian ban.

The Agricultural Sector (BCOMAG Index -1.48%) slumped in April, dragged lower by underperformance in the Soybeans complex, Cotton and Sugar. Corn (BCOMCN Index -1.63%) prices slid as the USDA kept its estimates for South American output unchanged even though its was expected by other regional forecasters that some estimates would be lowered to reflect recent dryness. The Beans complex also underperformed, with Soybeans (BCOMSY Index -3.45%) and Bean Oil (BCOMBO -11.29%) plummeting amidst ample world supplies and high Brazilian output expectations. The USDA held its forecast of Brazil soybeans production at 155 million metric tons despite lower projections from Conab at 146.5 million metric tons. Wheat (BCOMWH Index +4.94%) bounced back from recent lows amidst a sizable short covering following an attack by Russia on Ukrainian grain export facilities as well as persistently dry weather seeing to limit yields in the Southern US Plains. Sugar (BCOMSB Index -12.37%) underperformed amidst beneficial rains in South Central Brazil, a key growing region which had been under significant hydric stress between the end of 2023 and early Q1'24. The monsoon season in India also helped to ease fears for a meaningful deficit, with the market shifting their estimates for India from being net importer to being a net exporter. Coffee (BCOMKC Index +15.78%) surged as a heatwave in Vietnam affecting Robusta production and as a result support arabica beans. Cotton (BCOMCT -15.89%) slumped as global production forecasts for the 2024-25 marketing year rose, tipping the world scale into a surplus due to bigger than expected output in the US and Brazil.

The Livestock Sector (BCOMLI Index -1.20%) dipped in April as Lean Hogs (BCOMLH Index +1.01%) prices jumped in April amidst reports of shrinking Chinese herds while Live Cattle (BCOMLC Index -2.93%) dipped month-over-month despite strong cash prices on higher slaughter than expected. However, towards the end of the month, cattle slumped over concerns of H5N1 virus in meat, hurting end consumer demand.

The Collateral return contributed 0.49% for the month of April.

The Enhanced Strategy underperformed the benchmark by just -0.08% in April. Approximately half of the commodities contributed positively to outperformance, with Natural Gas (+0.15%) and Sugar (+0.07%) contributing the most; conversely, the strategy lagged behind the BCOM Index from holding deferred positions on Base Metals and Coffee. On Coffee, the Enhanced Strategy held exposure to May25 contracts, which rallied less than the Jul24 contracts that the BCOM Index was holding.

Risk Disclosures

Conflict of interests: Goldman Sachs performs several roles in connection with the Portfolio. Although Goldman Sachs will perform its obligations in good faith and a commercially reasonable manner, Goldman Sachs may face conflicts between those roles and its own interests.

Counterparty risk: The ability of the Portfolio to meet its obligations to investors will depend on the receipt by it of payments owed to the Portfolio by Goldman Sachs International under the Swap Agreement and the Reverse Repurchase Agreement. As a result, the Portfolio will be exposed to the creditworthiness of Goldman Sachs International.

Not principal protected: The Shares in the Portfolio are not principal protected and hence investors can potentially lose the full notional of investment.

No assurance of source of value: Although the Modified Strategy Goldman Sachs D266 on the Bloomberg Commodity Index Total Return (the "Underlyer Strategy") is designed to capture certain fundamental commodity relationships, the relationships may or may not exist.

No active management: There will be no active management of the Underlyer Strategy so as to enhance returns beyond those embedded in the modifications to the Bloomberg Commodity Index Total Return (the "Benchmark Index").

Potentially different returns from those of the Benchmark Index: Although the Underlyer Strategy includes the same futures contracts that comprise the Benchmark Index, its value and returns will likely differ from those of the Benchmark Index.

No assurance of "absolute" returns: There can be no assurance that the Underlyer Strategy to which the Portfolio is linked will actually be successful at producing consistently positive returns, nor does Goldman Sachs make any representation or warranty, express or implied, that the Underlyer Strategy will do so in the future.

Limit prices could impact liquidity in the Underlyer Strategy: The commodity markets can be subject to temporary distortions due to regulations that limit the amount of fluctuation in futures contract prices which may occur during a single trading day. Limit prices may have the effect of precluding trading in a particular contract or forcing liquidation of contracts underlying the Underlyer Strategy at disadvantageous times or prices. These circumstances could prevent an investor from redeeming their Shares in the Portfolio in full on a given day which could in turn adversely affect the return on Shares in the Portfolio for potential or existing investors.

Unpredictable changes in commodity contracts prices: Prices of commodity futures contracts and other commodity contracts included in the Underlyer Strategy are affected by a variety of factors which are unpredictable and beyond the control of Goldman Sachs and the Investment Manager.

Higher future prices of commodities included in the Underlyer Strategy relative to their current prices may adversely affect the value of the Shares in the Portfolio: The Underlyer Strategy replicates an actual investment in commodity contracts and therefore is affected by the need to "roll" the commodity contracts underlying the Underlyer Strategy due to commodity contracts having a predetermined expiration date on which trading in the contract ceases. "Rolling" (that is selling contracts that are nearing expiration before they expire and buying contracts that have an expiration date further in the future), while allowing an investor to maintain an investment position in the commodities underlying the Underlyer Strategy without receiving physical delivery of commodities or making or receiving a cash settlement, can potentially have a large impact on the level of the Underlyer Strategy. In particular, if the price of the contracts being sold is higher than that of the contracts being purchased (a situation known as "contango") and spot prices remain unchanged, this could result in negative performance of the Underlyer Strategy which could in turn affect the value of the Shares in the Portfolio.

No entitlement to the underlying commodity: Investing in the Portfolio will not make a holder entitled to physical delivery of any of the commodities included in the Underlyer Strategy or any contracts with respect thereto."
