The value of an investment and the income from it can fall as well as rise as a result of market and currency fluctuations and you may not get back the amount originally invested. For further information on risks please refer to the Fund's KIID/KID and/or the Prospectus. Investing in companies in emerging markets involves higher risk than investing in established economies or securities markets. Emerging Markets may have less stable legal and political systems, which could affect the safe-keeping or value of assets. The Fund's investment include shares in small-cap companies and these tend to be traded less frequently and in lower volumes than larger companies making them potentially less liquid and more volatile. The annual management charge is deducted from the capital of the Fund. This will increase the income from the Fund but may constrain or erode potential for capital growth.

Fund manager's commentary

- In March, equity markets rose further with the MSCI AC World Index up nearly 25% since its late October trough, led by tech/growth sectors
- Despite the fund's underperformance, Freeport McMoran and Shell were significant positive contributors, with large banks in the US and Europe showing strength
- The portfolio maintains a balance between companies with strong execution trading at reasonable valuations and those with compelling valuations but weaker current execution

Equity markets rose further in March. The MSCI AC World Index is now up nearly 25% since it troughed in late October. For most of that time, tech/growth has led the way, but in March, leadership shifted to the resources sectors, energy and mining, in the context of rising commodity prices. The Brent Oil price rose above $85 per barrel and copper above $400 per lb. The gold price has also been notably strong recently. Interestingly, this commodity price strength does not reflect dollar weakness. Indeed, the US dollar has been rising modestly against most major currencies as expectations for US rate cuts, and therefore, a reduced differential with rates elsewhere continued to fade.

Given this sector leadership, it was unsurprising that Freeport McMoran and Shell were among the fund's most significant positive contributors. Most of our utilities were also reasonably strong, having been laggards for most of the recent rally. Despite this, the fund underperformed a little – attribution analysis highlights the impact of stock selection in financials, where large banks in the US and Europe were very strong, whereas a few of our insurers and exchanges paused for breath after recent strength.

It has been unrewarding in recent months to be invested in stocks with poor relative earnings momentum in a market which, in the short term, is as much an extrapolating machine as a voting machine. We will continue to ensure the portfolio has a good balance between companies with strong execution trading at reasonable valuations, and companies on much more compelling valuations but with weaker current execution which we believe is leading investors to ignore a strong longer-term outlook.
