

AXA WF Asian Short Duration Bonds I USD

Fund Managers's Comment

Performance Attribution

- The fund rose 0.21% (gross of fees for the I USD share class) in February. The positive performance was driven by both spread returns and carry. The movement higher in US rates was negative for the fund's performance. The US 10-year bond yield rose 34 bps over the month, while the risk premium on the JACI 3-5 Year index decreased.
- All but two countries contributed positively to the fund's returns with Hong Kong, India and Indonesia being the largest contributors, with 11 and 4 basis points each respectively, while Australia detracted 4 basis point.
- On a sector basis, telecommunication, leisure, and utility bonds were the largest contributors, adding 8, 7 and 4 bps respectively. The banking and technology sectors were the only detractors, at 4 and 2 bps.
- The fund holds a broad range of issuers that contributed to its performance this month. Bonds issued by CAS Capital (Hong Kong telco), ReNew Power (Indian renewable energy operator), and the Indonesian sovereign contributed 8 and 2 basis points each respectively. Three Australian banks, NAB, ANZ, and Commonwealth Bank, were the only negative contributors costing a combined 4 basis points in February as US rates rose.
- High yield credits outperformed investment grade counterparts due to robust spread tightening in February.

Market Review

In February, emerging market bonds performed positively, with EM sovereigns outperforming EM corporates. Real yields rose as US Treasury yields sold off, with the re-pricing of Fed interest rates cuts for later in the year. However, spreads compressed and this outweighed the impact of higher US yields.

Regarding country events, In Indonesia, Prabowo Subianto's decisive victory in the elections avoided the need for a second-round run-off, securing his position as the next president.

In China, the Chinese Lunar New Year holiday brought about strong travel numbers, surpassing pre-Covid levels, although per capita consumption remained weak. Chinese authorities revealed plans to merge three large state-owned Asset Management Companies responsible for managing the resolution of bad loans in the Chinese finance sector, coinciding with significant losses in the Chinese stock market and the implementation of curbs on short selling and hedge fund trading to improve market sentiment. The Chinese property market continued to be volatile, and headline driven with movements in sales volumes and prices still negative.

Position Change

High yield bonds were added to support the portfolio's overall carry. These were funded by selling lower yielding bonds or those close to maturity. The average credit rating for the fund remained stable with small rotations across countries. Holdings in South Korea, Hong Kong, Indonesia were reduced and bonds added in India, Singapore, Kazakhstan and Oman. Holdings in Indian Railway Finance and JSW Steel were exited as these issuers entered our ESG coal exclusion list. We opened positions in HDFC Bank in India and KazMunayGas in Kazakhstan, and increased holdings China Cinda Asset Management as these bonds offered a good yield for their risk profile.

Duration remained unchanged at 2.2 year. The portfolio's yield rose to 6.1% as US rates moved higher. The average credit rating for the fund remained at BBB+. The percentage of high yield bonds increased by 2% to 19%. We will continue to monitor the credit quality of our holdings and adjust our portfolio as needed to optimize performance.
