Investment commentary

The holdings that contributed the most to relative returns this month were ING Group, the Dutch multinational banking and financial services corporation, Novo Nordisk, the global health care company, and EssilorLuxottica, the eyewear products and services company. ING Group performed well during the month, as numerous broker upgrades were announced, following expectations of better results due to higher rates and that guidance was overly conservative. Novo Nordisk continued to rise following a bullish CMD, as well as various positive pieces of news-flow including that the FDA had approved Wegovy for cardiovascular treatment. Finally, EssilorLuxottica reported solid +7% sales growth for the final quarter of 2023, ahead of consensus at +6%. North America (which had been a key concern going into the results) appears healthy, with growth accelerating in Q4.

The holdings that detracted most from relative returns in March were Sampo, the Nordic insurance group, LVMH, the French luxury goods company, and Atlas Copco, the global provider of industrial productivity solutions. Sampo dipped slightly during the month as investors began to see the potential for the stock to be fully valued, and that claims may rise in the quarter ahead. LVMH was broadly flat during the month, following two months of very strong performance and profit taking may have occurred. Finally, Atlas Copco was also flat over the month with no stock specific news of note.

* Indicates securities that are not held. The top 5 open and closed positions are displayed in order of position size, descending in order from largest to smallest. All transactions were completed as at 31.03.2024. If you require any further information, please visit <http://www.rbcbluebay.com/contact> for contact information. Sector/country attribution results are calculated over a trailing 12 month period. The objective of performance attribution is to explain portfolio performance relative to a benchmark, identify the sources of excess return, and relate them to active decisions by the portfolio manager. Fund sector/country weights in the attribution table are based on average weights for the period. Cash holdings are not included in attribution analysis thus security selection and sector/country allocation may not add up to the total portfolio return calculated using the NAV of the fund.

Important risk considerations

Currency Hedging Risk: Hedging currency risks may protect investors against a decrease in the value of the Reference Currency relative to the Hedged Share Class, but it may also preclude investors from benefiting from an increase in the value of such currencies. All costs and gains/losses of hedging transactions are borne by the relevant Hedged Share Classes.

Currency Risk: Sub-Funds are invested in securities denominated in different currencies other than the Reference Currency. As a result, changes in the value of the Reference Currency compared to other currencies will affect the value in the Reference Currency of any securities denominated in another currency.

Derivative Risk: Derivative instruments are highly sensitive to changes in the value of the underlying asset that they are based on. Certain derivatives may result in losses greater than the amount originally invested.

International Investment Risk: Investments on an international basis are subject to uncertainties, including; changes in government policies, taxation, fluctuations in foreign exchange rates, accounting and financial reporting standards, and fluctuations in value due to discrepancy of currency.

Large Shareholder Risk: Investors holding a large portion of issued and outstanding shares of a Sub-Fund are likely to incur transaction costs in case of redemptions.

Market Risk: The market value of a Sub-Fund's investments will fluctuate based on specific company developments, broader equity or fixed-income market conditions, economic and financial conditions.

Specialization Risk: Sub-Funds specializing in a particular sector may lead to underperformance relative to less specialized investments.

Further details of the risks that apply to the fund can be found in the funds prospectus.

*TER is the Total Expense Ratio and any associated ongoing charges are taken from the Fund over a year. The entry and exit charges shown are maximum figures. In some cases, you might pay less. A conversion charge of up to 2.00% may also apply in certain circumstances. Performance fee charges are taken from the Fund under certain specific conditions.

Glossary of terms

Accumulation (acc): Share classes can be accumulation (acc) or income (dist). With accumulation units any income is retained within the fund, increasing the value of the units.

Active share: Active share is a measure of the difference in allocation of the holdings of a portfolio compared to the holdings of its benchmark.

Annual management fee: Annual fee charged by the fund manager for management of the fund, expressed as a percentage.

Article 6: Financial products, not falling into either the Article 8 or 9 category. Where such products deem sustainability risks to be relevant to the returns of the product, the regulation requires transparency of the integration of sustainability risks. Where such risks are not deemed relevant, the regulation requires an explanation of the reasons. Such products are not subject to any of the additional transparency required for Article 8 or 9 products.

Article 8: Financial products where sustainable investment is not the objective, but they are promoting environmental or social characteristics (or a combination of those characteristics), provided that the companies in which the investments are made follow good governance practices. The regulation requires such products to have additional transparency on the promotion of environmental or characteristics.

Article 9: Financial products with sustainable investment as its objective. The regulation requires such products to have additional transparency of sustainable investments.

Asset allocation/breakdown: Breakdown of the fund in percentage fund value by asset.

Attribution: Sector/country attribution results are calculated over a trailing 12 month period. The objective of performance attribution is to explain portfolio performance relative to a benchmark, identify the sources of excess return, and relate them to active decisions by the portfolio manager. Fund sector/country weights in the attribution table are based on average weights for the period. Cash holdings are not included in attribution analysis thus security selection and sector/country allocation may not add up to the total portfolio return calculated using the NAV of the fund.

Benchmark: An index that is used to reference the overall investment performance of the fund. Calculated by a 3rd party using a documented methodology.

Contributors (Top/Bottom): Contribution in percentage terms that each holding contributed to fund performance (positive or negative) across the previous 1 month period.

Distribution (dist): Share classes can be accumulation (acc) or income (dist). With income units any income generated within the fund is distributed to the investor.

Equities: Investments in a company(s) by purchasing shares of that company in the stock market. Investor returns come in either the form of capital gains/losses (share price changes) and/or income (dividends).

ESG: An approach to investing that recommends taking environmental, social and corporate governance issues into account when screening for investments

Fixed income: Financial instruments issued by governments and corporations as a way to raise money, where the issuer agrees to pay back the face value of the loan on a specific date, and to pay periodic interest payments (coupons) along the way.

Fund domicile: The country in which the fund is legally incorporated.

Fund size: Total value of assets of the fund.

Fund type: The legal structure of the fund.

Geographic allocation: Breakdown of the fund in percentage of total fund value grouped by countries.

Hedged: A risk management strategy that involves buying or selling an investment or currency to potentially help reduce the risk of loss of an existing position.

Holdings: Number of unique holdings held by the fund, excluding cash positions.

Inception date: The date when the fund or share class launched for investors.

Investment objective: The investment target of the fund set out in the prospectus.

Market capitalisation: Total value of a company's outstanding shares of stock, which include publicly traded shares plus restricted shares held by company officers and insiders.

NAV: The net value of an investment fund's assets less its liabilities, divided by the number of shares outstanding. NAV is calculated at the end of each trading day based on the closing market prices of the portfolio's securities and is expressed as a 'per share' value.

Portfolio turnover: Portfolio turnover is a measure of how quickly securities in a fund are either bought or sold by the fund's managers, over a given period of time. This is measured as a percentage of the portfolio.

Sector Allocation: Breakdown of the fund in percentage of the total fund value, by sector allocation (GICS).

SFDR: The European Commission's Sustainable Finance Disclosure Regulation (SFDR) is regulation on sustainability-related disclosures in the financial services sector. It sets out rules for financial market participants and financial advisers on transparency with regulation to the integration of sustainability risks and the consideration of adverse sustainability impacts in their processes and the provision of sustainability-related information with respect to financial products.

Share class: Each class invests in the same portfolio of securities and has the same investment objectives and policies. Each class has different shareholder services and/or distribution arrangements with different fees and expenses.

Total expense ratio (TER): The ongoing costs associated with managing and operating an investment fund. This will include annual management fee, performance fee (if applicable) and some other expenses, but not the fund's transactions costs such as dealing commissions.

The investments discussed may fluctuate in value and you may not get back the amount invested. The return may increase or decrease as a result of currency fluctuations. Investment in derivatives may involve a high degree of gearing or leverage, so that a relatively small movement in the price of the underlying investment results in a much larger movement in the price of the instrument, as a result of which prices are more volatile. There are restrictions on transferring interests in the funds. The instruments in which the products invest may involve complex tax structures and there may be delays in distributing important tax information. The funds are not required to provide periodic pricing or valuation information to investors with respect to its individual investments.

Unless otherwise stated, performance data is unaudited and net of management, performance and other fees. Past performance is not indicative of future results.

Any indices shown are presented only to allow for comparison of the RBC BlueBay fund's performance to that of certain widely recognised indices. The volatility of the indices may be materially different from the individual performance attained by a specific fund or investor. In addition, the RBC BlueBay fund holdings may differ significantly from the securities that comprise the indices shown. Indexes are unmanaged and investors cannot invest directly in an index.
