Management commentary

Amundi Chenavari Credit Fund net performance for February 2024 was -0.14% (class SI USD) driven by Corporate (-0.06%) and by Financials (-0.08%). February saw investors recalibrate rate-cut bets closer to central bank forecasts driven by sticky inflation, while equity markets across the Atlantic reached record highs amid sustained optimism over artificial intelligence. In the U.S., the core PCE index, the Fed's preferred inflation gauge, registered a 0.4% monthly increase in January (vs 0.1% in December). The U.S. labour market also recorded a stronger-than-expected payrolls report with wages up 4.5% in the 12 months through January (vs. 4.3% last month). Both factors have contributed to investors effectively ruling out a March rate cut as the Fed strives to bring down inflation to its 2% target.

In the Eurozone, YoY headline inflation marginally eased to 2.8% in January (vs 2.9% in December) and the YoY core inflation decreased to 3.3% (vs 3.4% in December). Negotiated wage growth, closely watched by the ECB to determine the timing of rate cuts, also declined to 4.5% in Q4 2023 (vs 4.7% in Q3). Meanwhile, the negative Q4 GDP print confirmed that the U.K. slipped into a technical recession in the second half of 2023, while headline inflation was cooler than expected, remaining unchanged at 4% in January.

Against this backdrop, equities rallied strongly with the STOXX Europe 600 increasing by +1.84% notching an all-time high, whilst the S&P 500 and Nasdaq also reached their highest all-time levels, rising by +5.17% and +6.12%, respectively, propelled by the outperformance of the 'Magnificent 7' stocks. In synthetic credit, both the iTraxx Xover and CDX HY returned to tighter levels, with spreads tightening by -23bp and -21bp, respectively. In global bonds, both the U.S. 10Y (+34bp) and the German 10Y Bund (+25bp) rose sharply to 4.25% and 2.41%, respectively.

CORPORATE

In the European corporate credit market, February extended the rally we saw in January, with the Bloomberg European High Yield benchmark pushing +0.37% higher in the month. This was the result of a further tightening in spreads, which more than offset the move higher in rates following a pullback in expectations of rate cuts this year. In the HY primary market, it was an extremely quiet month, with only a handful of deals placing. As has been the theme of this year so far, refinancing was once again the main use of proceeds as fresh supply continues to be limited. The strategy itself only participated in some IG new issues which came at an attractive premium, such as Siemens and KPN.

The Corporate book finished the month slightly down, -0.12% at the allocation level and -0.06% at the Fund level, mostly driven by the short portion of the portfolio but the strategy continues to be positive year-to-date. In single names, long Cirsia, Ziggo and PureGym were the top performers, whilst rates hedges also added positively to performance.

During the month, Cirsia reported solid 4Q'23 results with sales up +7.7% and EBITDA up +5.5% for the quarter. Net leverage stood at 3.6x, which was flat quarter-on-quarter, but much improved from 2022 (4.1x at end of December), and deleveraging continues to be the main financial target for the company. EDF posted strong results during the month. FY EBITDA stood at €39.9bn, bouncing back after a difficult 2022, driven by improved French nuclear production. Debt was reduced by €10bn over the year, and net leverage stood at 1.36x, well below their target of 2.5x. The hybrid bonds finished the month roughly +1pt higher and were another top positive contributor to the strategy. However, this positive performance was offset, with short United Group, Renault and long BT being the largest single name detractors, whilst credit hedges also added negatively.

As was the case in January, with spreads continuing to move tighter, Chenavari used this as an opportunity to take profits on some names which Chenavari felt had exacerbated their upside, adding in new names and topping up on some existing names which Chenavari considers have the most room to rally further. Chenavari continues to operate with a long bias, and still sees many attractive long and short opportunities in the market, despite the lack of supply.

FINANCIALS

February was another relatively good month for Financials credit with spreads continuing to tighten, especially in the AT1 space, although the total return performance was affected by higher rates on the back of investors continuing to push out rates cuts further into 2024. € and $ AT1 spreads ended the month -26bp and -29bp tighter, respectively, on very strong technicals. In the absence of any foreseeable short term catalyst, investors continue to chase high coupon AT1s offering relatively attractive yields and carry opportunities. This was evident in the book-building of primary deals where strong demand caused the deals to squeeze significantly and secondary to reprice significantly tighter. For instance, Standard Chartered printed a $1bn PNC6 AT1 at 7.875%, well below where existing Standard Chartered AT1s were trading, causing existing bonds to reprice >1pts higher. Upper in the capital stack, € T2s were -8bp tighter while € Seniors were -10bp tighter, leading to some decompression.

Earnings season was in full swing in the month and Q4 results were broadly positive, especially for periphery names. The trend was for profitability continuing to hold up on the back of resilient NII, benign asset quality with broadly supportive 2024 profit guidance. Of note, following some profit warnings issued overseas (NY Community Bancorp in the U.S. and Aozora in Japan) due to U.S. commercial real estate (CRE) exposures, German names came under pressure given their real estate exposure. Excluding some CRE specialised lenders such as Deutsche PBB and Aareal Bank, both exposed to U.S. and German CRE where Chenavari expects profitability to be challenged this year by higher provisions, Chenavari thinks national champions like Deutsche Bank and Commerzbank should see limited impact by any deterioration in real estate given their business diversification and sound profitability. In the strategy, the group remains constructive on Deutsche Bank and Commerzbank (the latter with no exposure to U.S. CRE) and took advantage of the correction to top up the exposure, for instance on CMZB 4.25% C28 offering a yield-to-call of >10%.

The primary market was particularly active with €49.7bn issued from European banks, well above 2023's level of €34.9bn. This means that YTD issuance has amounted to €121bn and so has exceeded the amount of €120bn issued in 2023. Chenavari thinks the pipeline will remain busy as the groups expects that banks will try to frontload most of the 2024 funding in H1'24, thus avoiding any potential periods of high volatility in conjunction with U.S., EU, and UK political elections. To be noted, the month has seen 8 AT1 deals, all from core banks and all for refinancing purposes, except the new UBS AT1. In the strategy, Chenavari was disciplined and decided to pass on most of the deals as secondaries were offering more attractive yields.

The Financials book finished the month slightly down, -0.17% at the allocation level and -0.08% at the Fund level, mostly driven by negative MtM on the German bank AT1 exposure, whilst the squeeze in credit hedges also negatively impacted the book. On the other hand, the top positive performers were the positions on Novo Banco and RBI.
