FUND MANAGER'S COMMENTS

The path to normalcy of many economies has been disrupted by a global surge in coronavirus cases caused by the highly contagious Delta Variant. Europe's tourism sector is at risk as Spain, Portugal and Greece register a spike in cases, and adopt measures accordingly. The US will not lift travel restrictions either, whilst the UK government opened its borders to fully vaccinated travellers from the U.S. and the European Union. Above the spread of COVID-19, Europe is now worrying about floods too as the death toll reaches 188.

In July, the US Composite PMI further decreased to 59.7, moving further apart from May's record high of 68.1. The Services PMI (59.8) has fallen for 2 months in a row, amid labour shortages and declining consumer sentiment (down 5 pts). Despite PMIs being in expansionary territory, US GDP growth (6.5% annualized) in Q2 was below expectations. This month, as unemployment reached 5.9% and inflation registered its fastest gain since 1991 (3.5% yoy), Chairman Powell said the Fed is 'away from making substantial progress towards stable prices and maximum employment'. Accordingly, the Fed took a dovish stance, maintaining interest rates anchored near zero, yet rate hike expectations have been rising further.

In the Euro Area, business conditions appear stronger than in the US, with the Composite PMI up to 60.6 in July from 59.5 last month, reaching its steepest pace in 15 years. Both manufacturing and services PMI are in expansion but still constrained by supply shortages. In the second quarter, GDP across the European Union rose by 13.2% compared with the same period last year, but European GDP has yet to return to its pre-pandemic level. The ECB maintains a 'persistently accommodative' stance and, in order to tackle growth and unemployment without having to worry too much about inflationary pressures, it has adjusted its inflation target to a symmetric 2% from 'below but close to 2%'.

In the past month, there has been a decrease in benchmark yields, with the US 10-year yield falling by 20 bps to 1.24% and the 10-year Bund by 26 bps to -0.46. Non-core spreads have slightly increased, with the BTP-Bund spread up by 6 bps, reaching 109 and the Bonos-Bund spread by 10 bps to 73.

Considering Europe, the Investment Grade (IG) credit spread didn't move, and the High Yield (HY) credit spread increased by 10 bps. The US IG credit spread increased by 5 bps to 91 and the HY credit spread was up by 22 bps to 326.

Overall, global equities were positive with the MSCI World up 1.8%. Equity markets in the US performed better than in Europe with the S&P500 up by 2.4% and the Euro Stoxx 50 up by 0.8%. The S&P500 also outperformed the Nasdaq, which this month grew by 1.2%.

Portfolio Activity

The government bond weight has been increased in July in all geographical areas except in Italy and in Canada. This asset class remained underweighted compared to the strategic asset allocation (9.0% vs 30%). All the region are underweighted but US remain, by far, the highest exposure. However, we keep some exposure to this asset class as safe haven assets bring diversification to equity like exposures in a context where tail risks remain elevated (Central Bank disappointment, bad news regarding the number of contamination and of clusters, high probability in corporate default...). This bucket contribution was positive over the month (circa 9 bps).

Over the month, the weight of the investment grade has been increased by +1.4%. The IG exposure is overweighted compared to the neutral allocation (13.4% vs 10% at S.A.A) despite gradual decrease for months. We intend to benefit from the extraordinary support announced by Central Banks and governments especially to investment grade companies to benefit from a price appreciation and an attractive carry in the medium term. The IG bucket contribution was positive in July (0.13%).

The High Yield bucket has been increased at 26.0% while the underweight in emerging market debt has been slightly reduced with a 3.7% allocation. The exposure to the HY segment and the Emerging market Debt is now very close to its neutral allocation (29.8% vs 30%). This bucket had a positive performance of 17bps.

The equity bucket contribution was mute in July as global markets have involved without a clear direction during the month. All the different geographical areas recorded slightly positive performances while the EM exposure offset the gains. This asset class has been decreased further as the source of concerns increased in the summer.

We keep a decent exposure to dividend futures within this bucket as more positive news regarding distribution and earnings growth over the next years have increased the attractiveness of this asset class. During the month, those positions had a positive contribution. The optionality took to play a recced in volatility levels did very well over the month. Overall, the opportunistic bucket contribution was largely positive (0.57%).

Outlook

The view is slightly positive on equities at the asset class level over the short term. We continue to favor this asset class over the medium term as it should continue to benefit from the positive trend and because we think that the combination of a stronger than expected economic recovery in 2021 coupled with strong fiscal and monetary support as well as the lack of alternative for investors will be favorable to some sector in the months to come. However, Central Bank actions may negatively surprise and that would weight on risky assets. This is particularly true after an important YTD rally while the positioning is less stretched now in equities.

Government bond returns look asymmetric to the downside in core countries given the interest rates level and the cost of carry in Europe due to still negative interest rates. The case is slightly different in the US where carry is positive and growing. The recent decrease in interest rates gave little interest on this asset class as the carry is still not at an interesting level. We expect Central Banks to be attentive to further rise and should ultimately intervene if necessary to avoid the potential dramatic impact of higher interest rates on cost of debt.

The view on corporate credit segment is slightly positive. This asset class should keep on being supported by investors search for yields in a very low interest rates environment as well as by Central Banks purchasing programs. When it comes to the HY, while bankruptcies could keep on rising in the coming months, especially for financially weak companies, it should remain much contain than expected last year. On top of this, the current yield level makes the asset class attractive in terms of carry and could still be chased by investors especially if risk appetite rise.
