Such companies may have shorter track records and earnings than more established growth companies and may have a higher risk profile.

The Fund is actively managed. The index is provided for comparative purposes only.

The Fund is aimed at investors with a long-term investment horizon (typically 5 years or more).

FUND COMMENTARY

European markets retreated in August as consumer price inflation remained at 5.3%, defying expectations for a drop and raising concerns that further interest rate hikes may be necessary.

The portfolio's performance this month was strongly impacted by the sharp fall in Adyen's share price following disappointing first half results in which sales growth slowed and the margin fell. A decision to slash prices by some competitors in the US led Adyen to grow less than expected (albeit still growing sales +21% in the first half of the year). The company expects growth to reaccelerate in the coming quarters. Bakkafrøst also reported weaker-than-expected profit in Q2 following extraordinarily low harvest volumes in the Faroe Islands farming segment and lower Q2 harvest weights in Scotland due to biology-led harvests. Nevertheless, the company has not changed its internal long-term expectations for Scotland as larger smolt should help address the current mortality issues. In the Faroe Islands, Bakkafrøst expects harvest weights to increase back to previous levels in the second half of the year.

On the positive side, Novo Nordisk saw its share price rise sharply on the back of a positive readout from its SELECT study which demonstrated meaningful cardiovascular benefits for Wegovy, its anti-obesity product. We believe this will significantly improve the prospect of reimbursement in many markets. ICON's shares also continued to perform strongly in August after it reported solid Q2 results at the end of July and gave an encouraging outlook for the second half of 2023 with biotech activity picking up. The company narrowed its revenue forecast, with a sales growth of +4.3 to +6.1% now expected. Earnings per share growth was upgraded to +7.5 to +9.9%.
