FUND COMMENTARY

Emerging markets experienced profit taking after a strong Q4'23, not helped by the US dollar strengthening. China was weak, with recent government stimuli packages not enough to persuade investors that the economy is likely to improve. The country's property sector remains fragile, with further price declines and the liquidation of property developer Evergrande. It is becoming increasingly apparent to market participants that China's property problems will not be resolved for some years, with the consequent impact on consumer sentiment. India ended the month in positive territory, with stocks benefitting from continued strong domestic and international inflows (partially a mirror of the negative sentiment towards China), a strong outlook for 2024 GDP growth and the high probability that Prime Minister Modi will be re-elected.

The portfolio's semiconductor related names, TSMC, ASML and Lasertec reported robust Q4'23 results. ASML indicated a strong outlook for 2025, with orders expected to pick up in H1'24. Lasertec's sales rose 62% year-on-year, with operating profit margin expanding to 45%. TSMC guided above expectations, with FY'24 USD revenues of 20-25%.

HDFC Bank was one of the largest detractors from performance. With a loan-to-deposit ratio of the newly merged entity at 110%, compared to an average pre-merger of 86%, HDFC Bank will struggle to expand loan growth to the extent previously expected without either expanding its branch network and/or borrowing in the inter-bank market, neither of which comes without a cost. It appears the long-standing quality shine attached to HDFC has been tarnished – hence the derating. We reduced the position accordingly. We also made further significant cuts to LG Chem as supply/demand dynamics have continued to deteriorate, affecting battery pricing, while a potential US Presidential election victory for Donald Trump would put at risk benefits related to the Inflation Reduction Act.

On 2nd January 2024, Russian company TCS announced its intention to delist its GDRs from London. We identified a selling opportunity at around a 40% discount versus the Moscow traded price. Since the invasion, the discount averaged well above 60%. Considering that shares had previously been valued at zero, as well as the high likelihood that we would be restricted from trading the exchanged Russian share following delisting, we sold with an overall positive impact on the portfolio.
