Investment objective

The objective of this Sub-fund is to provide its investors with a long-term capital appreciation by implementing a UCITS compliant strategy that seeks to approximate the returns of alternative investments styles such as Equity Hedge and Macro selected by the Sub-Manager. For this purpose, the Sub-Manager will use a quantitative analysis of historical returns of the selected alternative styles to seek and isolate the financial factors such as equity indices, interest rates and currencies as well as their relative weightings that materially contribute to statistically approximate the returns of these alternative investment styles. The Sub-fund will then use this analysis to provide similar performance to these alternative investment strategies. The Sub-fund is actively managed, not in reference to a benchmark.

Market Review

The sudden emergence of a global banking crisis caused a violent reversal in the fixed income markets -- market commentators called it a “13 standard deviation move” in the short end. The crisis was compounded as Credit Suisse succumbed to the contagion and had to be rescued by UBS via a weekend deal. Inflation concerns were temporarily pushed aside, and all hands were on deck to shore up public trust in the global banking system. Shortly after the squall, and to preserve their inflation fighting credibility, central bankers around the globe raised rates by token amounts and signaled that the end to rate hikes could be near.

Fund Review

The Equity Hedge replication portfolio returned -1.2% for the month. Equity exposure with a value bias towards small/midcap stocks detracted from performance as the banking crisis hit these segments the hardest. Inflation hedges in Treasuries also dragged on performance but a reduction in exposure mid-month helped to contain losses. The Managed Futures replication portfolio returned -4.5% in March. Short positions in Treasuries and a rally in the Japanese Yen were the primary detractors, as was a spread trade on EAFE outperforming the US. The Cross-Asset Momentum portfolio returned -2% during the month. As opposed to the Managed Futures replication, the less aggressive positioning in treasuries and the Japanese Yen allowed for the portfolio to contain losses.

Outlook

As with other inflection points, we expect material shifts in the portfolio over coming weeks as managers jettison losing positions and hunt for new opportunities. This is a big shift on the macro front. Throughout the tightening cycle, we could all take comfort that the banking system - the essential plumbing of the markets- was functioning smoothly; that is no longer a given. A month ago, the Fed cutting rates was associated with a victory dance on inflation and refilling the punch bowl; today it looks more like triage and a blood infusion.
