More specifically, unconventional weapons are understood as: anti-personnel mines; cluster bombs; nuclear weapons*; impoverished uranium; biological weapons; chemical weapons; stealth cluster bombs; blinding lasers; incendiary weapons; white phosphorus.

*With regard to exclusions on nuclear weapons, issuers based in states that have adhered to the “Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty” stipulated on 1 July 1968 are not considered.

The weighting of issuers that comply with the specific positive and negative selection criteria identified by the Product, i.e. (i) issuers of green/sustainable bonds and (ii) companies publicly engaged in the energy transition process, particularly through the progressive reduction in Scope 1 and Scope 2 emissions to reach climate neutrality by 2050 (“Net Zero” goal).

Percentage of assets in government issuers meeting the screening criteria

The weight of government issuers that meet the selection criteria defined on the basis of the indicators of the “Sustainable Development Report” and Regulation (EU) 2019/2088 to monitor the principal adverse impacts relating to government issuers.

Investment Manager Commentary

Market Development

There was some geographical divergence in bond market performance in March. US government bond yields rose, while core euro government bond yields remained fairly stable as the yield curve steepened. This divergence in market performance is a direct consequence of a still robust US economic cycle and a Fed that has signalled its intention to begin the cycle of rate cuts if inflation continues to fall. In the Eurozone, on the other hand, the ECB has been steering markets towards a June start to the monetary easing cycle. Eurozone inflation appears to be falling at a much faster pace, making the scenario of an ECB rate cut ahead of the Fed more likely. Over the month, peripheral government bond spreads remained stable, while emerging market local currency bond yields fell in Asia and Eastern Europe and rose in Latin America. In the currency markets, the dollar remained stable against the major currencies.

Performance and Investment Choices

The Fund maintained a portfolio duration above that of the benchmark. The duration overweight was most pronounced on the European curves (Italian and UK government bonds). The overweight in US bonds was maintained, particularly in the short and intermediate parts of the curve. The overweight in local emerging markets was maintained in some countries. The Fund overweighted the US dollar and the yen and, in the emerging region, the Brazilian real and the Mexican peso.

Outlook and Investment Strategy

In the coming months, a generally positive stance on global interest rates will be maintained. 2024 will see the start of the Central Banks' easing cycle, although this stance will remain highly dependent on monthly data releases. This could lead to potentially volatile interest rate movements and the aim will be to manage this uncertainty by adjusting duration intensity - which remains long for the time being - and currency bets. The dollar is currently trading in a fairly narrow range, but it is believed that divergences in central bank policy could emerge this quarter, which should favour the US dollar.
