- below investment grade debt instruments with a minimum rating of B-/B3: 25%

*With regard to exclusions on nuclear weapons, issuers based in states that have adhered to the "Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty" stipulated on 1 July 1968 are not considered.

Investment Manager Commentary

Market Development

In March, the green primary market closed with a higher level of issuance than in the same period last year, with a good number of reopenings by European governments, most notably Iceland's inaugural issue and the fifth issue by the European Union. Within corporate bonds, the industrials sector was the largest contributor, followed by financials. The month ended with around USD 51 billion in new issues.

Performance and Investment Choices

Approximately 99% of the Fund's strategic portfolio is invested in Green bonds: investment grade corporate bonds (52%) mainly from European countries, emerging market bonds (4%), supranational, agency and government bonds (35%) and high yield corporate bonds (9%).

In terms of overall positioning, duration leverage was actively managed, initially reduced in the early part of the month and then increased in the latter part of the period.

In terms of overall positioning, the duration was extended. More precisely, the duration of the strategic component was increased mainly through the purchase of government and supranational securities, both European and non-European, while at the same time increasing portfolio diversification by participating in Iceland's inaugural issue and the European Union's fifth issue on the extra-long end of the curve. From a tactical point of view, bearish options expiring in June on the European curve were maintained and additional bearish options expiring in September were implemented, again with a view to hedging the risk of lower rate cuts than those priced by the market.

In the spread bond segment, the management team participated selectively in the primary market, favouring investments in financials and utilities. With regard to the tactical management of the credit component, the portfolio's existing hedging positions were maintained through options on credit indices.

On the currency side, a long US dollar position was maintained for currency diversification and hedging purposes.

The Fund's performance was positive for the month. Positive contributions were made by the component invested in credit securities, both Investment Grade and High Yield, and the downward movement of yields. The contribution of hedging strategies was slightly negative due to rising yields.

Outlook and Investment Strategy

In the coming months, the market will remain largely focused on future monetary policy moves and macroeconomic data releases in the US and Europe.

The market continues to expect a gradual slowdown in economic activity.

In this environment, an active approach to both duration management and exposure to credit asset classes will be maintained.

The Fund will continue to capitalise on and monitor market conditions, actively adjusting the portfolio's performance drivers to adjust the mix of investments.
