Volatility is a statistical measure of the dispersion of returns for a portfolio or market index. In most cases, the higher the volatility, the riskier.

Tracking Error is the standard deviation of the difference between the portfolio return and the desired investment benchmark return.

Sharpe Ratio is a ratio used to measure risk-adjusted performance. It is calculated by subtracting the risk-free rate from the rate of return for a portfolio and dividing the result by the standard deviation of the portfolio returns.

Quarterly comment

Despite a slower-than-hoped-for vaccine rollout, European equity markets continued to rise, and value outperformed growth yet again. With a favorable backdrop for value, the ABN AMRO Pzena European Equities Fund significantly outpaced both the MSCI Europe and MSCI Europe Value Indices, driven by our Financials, Industrials, and Consumer Discretionary exposures, while health care was the only detractor.

Porsche Automobil Holding (German auto manufacturer), Rexel (electrical equipment distributor), and Michelin (tire producer) were the largest individual contributors. Credit Suisse (Swiss bank), John Wood Group (oil services), and Viatis (generic drug manufacturer) were the largest detractors.

Despite another strong quarter for our portfolio, value has still materially underperformed growth over the past several years. Valuation spreads remain at extremely wide levels, indicating that the opportunity set for value remains very attractive. The Fund is heavily skewed toward industries where economic pain from the pandemic is having a meaningful impact in the short term, but where we see significant potential for valuation upside longer-term given the quality of the underlying franchises and balance sheets.
