Volatility is a statistical measure of the dispersion of returns for a portfolio or market index. In most cases, the higher the volatility, the riskier.

Tracking Error is the standard deviation of the difference between the portfolio return and the desired investment benchmark return.

Sharpe Ratio is a ratio used to measure risk-adjusted performance. It is calculated by subtracting the risk-free rate from the rate of return for a portfolio and dividing the result by the standard deviation of the portfolio returns.

Quarterly comment

European markets rose in the first quarter on the prospect of upcoming interest rate cuts and improving economic sentiment. Growth materially outperformed value, but the ABN AMRO Pzena European Equities Fund underperformed both the MSCI Europe and MSCI Europe Value Indices due to outsized moves in a few particular stocks. From a sector standpoint, our information technology, health care, and consumer staples exposures were the largest detractors, while financials and consumer discretionary contributed. ams-OSRAM (sensor & lighting manufacturer), Teleperformance (outsourced customer experience provider), and Reckitt Benckiser Group (consumer staples) were the largest individual detractors. Daimler Truck (truck manufacturer), NatWest (UK bank), and Balfour Beatty (UK-based engineering and construction firm) were the largest individual contributors. Though value equities have performed well in recent months, valuations remain particularly compelling at the cheapest end of the European market. The opportunity set remains disparate and idiosyncratic in nature, enabling us to maintain a well-diversified portfolio, offering multiple paths back to the full restoration of our companies' normal earnings potential.
