Risk Warnings

For complete information on risks, refer to the legal documents. Property and land can be difficult to sell, so investors may not be able to sell such investments when they want to. The value of property is generally a matter of an independent valuer's opinion and may not be realised. Real estate investments are typically non listed on regulated markets and need to be valued via the application of appropriate models (potentially applied by independent experts): this may lead to inaccurate valuations which may not be reflected into transaction prices. Changes in interest rates, rental yields and general economic conditions may result in fluctuations in the value of the fund. Real estate investments are exposed to counterparty risk, which is the risk that a counterparty is unable to deal with its obligations. The fund may use derivatives (complex instruments) and borrowings, which may result in the fund being significantly leveraged and may result in large fluctuations in the value of the fund. Real estate investments can be exposed to new sustainability-related regulatory requirements that may negatively affect the value of those assets which are not compliant and can envisage significant costs to be invested to comply or to simply improve their sustainability profile. In addition, real estate investments can be also significantly exposed to negative economic effects stemming from climate change, natural disasters and the general preference of investors for assets with better sustainability features. The underlying funds might make use of debt to finance investments which may result in the fund being more leveraged and may result in greater fluctuations in the value of the fund. Many Real Estate investments are illiquid, meaning that the fund may not be able to sell them quickly at a fair price and/or that the redemptions may be delayed due to illiquidity of the underlying investments.

Past performance does not predict future returns. Each period starts at the end of the indicated month. The first indicated month may not represent a full month and may start only on the launch/restructuring date indicated in the headline.
