The Bramshill Income Performance UCITS Fund performed very well in November, up +4.38% for the month and now up +3.94% YTD. The portfolio benefitted significantly from our repositioning of the portfolio in September and October.

30 November 2023

Entering this year we were cautiously awaiting opportunities because we believed the economy was strong and the Fed would aggressively hike rates in 1H23. At that time, we believed caution was appropriate as the opportunity set on most US fixed income was marginal at best due to interest rate risk and thus, we maintained significant liquidity and a very short duration. In September, however, we determined that inflation was waning, the economy was beginning to slow, and the Fed had shifted to a more neutral stance. Based on these fundamental factors and oversold conditions in the treasury market, we stated in our October Webinar our intention to deploy a significant amount of our liquidity and extend duration. We shifted significant capital into investments from our bullpen.

Since September, we have reduced our cash/ST US Treasury position to approximately 27% and we extended the duration of the portfolio to 3.7 years. In particular, we allocated to investment grade corporates, where we have increased our exposure in the past 2 months to approximately 25% of the Fund. Most of this allocation shift in October was directed into long duration, low dollar price, high quality bonds which were trading between $55 and $65, yielding approximately 6.75%, and had an average spread of +170 to treasuries. In November we added to certain names in this basket such as Boeing, Valero, Biogen, 3M, Oracle, Starbucks, and Raytheon. We also added a new issue from Brookfield Finance 6.35% '34 and some short duration IG corporates such as BankAmerica 0.981% '25, yielding approximately 6.5%.

Our preferred exposure now stands at approximately 33.5% of the portfolio. We will be patient and likely only add to this asset class opportunistically via the new issue market.

Our high yield corporate exposure was stable this month at approximately 6.5% of the portfolio. We want to maintain discipline in the high yield corporate bond market, as defaults have already increased to approximately 4.5% this year and further defaults are likely in a slowing economy.

In municipals, we maintained an approximate 8% position in municipal closed-end funds which experienced a dramatic rally in November. While we find value in this sector, we will be selective on CEFs which have delevered and are less likely to cut distributions in the future.

The YTM on the portfolio is 6.94%, with a YTW of 6.65%. We have become more constructive on the asset classes in which we invest because interest rate risk is significantly lower than earlier this year. We plan to continue to allocate capital throughout this quarter. This is a good time to build long term fixed income portfolios without having to take significant duration or credit risk.
