(1) The summary risk indicator (SRI) is a guide to the level of risk of this product compared to other products. It shows how likely it is that the product will lose money because of movements in the market or because we are not able to pay you. It ranges from 1 (low risk) to 7 (high risk). This indicator is not constant and will change according to the fund's risk profile. The lowest category does not mean risk-free. Historical data, such as that used to calculate the SRI, may not be a reliable indication of the fund's future risk profile. Yield to worst	4.05 %

Futures and options are not included in the calculation of the yield. The Yield to Maturity is calculated before currency hedging. The Yield to Worst is calculated after currency hedging.

The Yield to Maturity (YTM) is the estimation at a certain date of the expected rate of return of a bond portfolio if the securities are held to maturity. It does by no means constitute a promised return. It can, therefore, be affected by interest rate risks, default risks, reinvestment risks and the fact that bonds may not be held until maturity.

The Yield to worst (YTW) is the estimation at a certain date of the worst expected rate of return of a bond portfolio of which some of the securities would not be held until maturity but redeemed at the discretion of the issuer (call). It does by no means constitute a promised return. It can, therefore, be affected by interest rate risks, default risks, reinvestment risks and the fact that bonds may not be held until maturity.

The breakdown takes into consideration the rating of the issuer in the case of unrated issues.

SUSTAINABLE REPORT – METHODOLOGY

ODDO BHF AM considers that measuring the environmental, social and governance impact of an investment is an essential step in disseminating good practices in ESG integration. To do this, it is imperative to have reliable, simple quantitative criteria (no reprocessing) and to allow comparison between portfolios regardless of their composition (large vs midcaps, geographical and sectoral diversity). The choice of indicators is therefore crucial for the relevance of impact measurement.

We systematically indicate the availability of the data at the level of the portfolio and its benchmark.

MONTHLY MANAGEMENT COMMENT

In April fixed income markets were under pressure from a sharp increase in yields across all geographies led by the US. After a benign March, a string of strong economic data including PMIs, labor market and inflation data led markets to further cut back their expectations regarding the Fed policy rate path, and Fed speakers confirmed the market's reassessment playing down any urgency to start cutting rates near term given upside risks to inflation. As a result, the market moved the total amount of expected rate cuts in 2024 to below two with a later start in fall rather than summer. Even though economic data in the Eurozone did not warrant a similar directional move and policy makers continued to verbally support their guidance of a first rate cut in June, the re-pricing of US rates led to a spillover to other markets.

Credit markets remained firm in this backdrop of increased rates volatility as the higher yields continued to attract inflows and the earnings season so far did not prove to be a major stumbling block. Even the geopolitical tensions in the Middle East failed to meaningfully widen spreads for more than a few days and the ensuing market weakness quickly reversed. At the end of the month Investment Grade corporate bond spreads were flat, while High Yield bonds tightened by 3ps. The yield of German 10yr Bunds increased to 2.58% while US 10yr Treasury yields increased to 4.68%.

Over the course of the month we have cut back duration at the very long end, as economic data (mainly in the US) are still too strong for duration to perform meaningfully in the short term. However, the disinflationary process is not uniform across the geographies and while the US appears to have stalled in terms of progress we are still of the view that the disinflationary process remains intact supported by a much weaker growth outlook. Therefore we maintain a constructive stance on duration over the coming months while trying to navigate the current headwinds from a US driven increase in yields. With respect to the credit exposure in the fund, we have used the active High Yield new issue market to increase our allocation to that segment. In a macroeconomic environment where growth remains firm in the US and could be bottoming out in the Eurozone, where corporate earnings remain solid and default rates low, High Yield bonds remain an attractive diversifier in the portfolio.
