This actively managed sub-fund aims to provide long-term capital growth by being exposed to China A-shares.

- The sub-fund mainly invests in market leading companies.

It may also hold up to 20% of its net assets in bank deposits at sight.
- The sub-fund may use derivatives to achieve the investment objective and for hedging purposes.

The indicator above does not signal the risk of a potential loss, but indicates the fluctuations in the sub-fund's share price in the past.

- The share class is assigned to this category because its share price can fluctuate sharply due to the investment policy applied.
- The historical data used to calculate the profile cannot be used as a reliable guide to the future risk profile of the sub-fund.
- The risk category shown is not guaranteed and may change.
- Even the lowest risk category is not entirely free of risk.

When assigning a sub-fund's share class to a risk category, it may be the case that not all risks are taken into account. Such risks include risks in connection with exceptional market events, operational errors, legal and political events. You can find a detailed list of the risks in the "Risk Considerations" section in the general part of the sales prospectus. The following risks have no direct influence on this category, but may still be important:

- Using derivatives generally creates leverage and entails valuation risks and operational risks. Leverage magnifies gains but also losses. Over-the-counter derivatives involve corresponding counterparty risks.
- The sub-fund also includes sustainability criteria in its investment process. This may mean that the sub-fund's performance is more positive or negative than a conventionally managed portfolio.
- The listed equity securities including A-shares of many companies in the People's Republic of China are materially less liquid, subject to greater dealing spreads and experience materially greater volatility than those of OECD countries. Trading band limits are imposed on China A-shares, where trading in any China A-share security on the relevant stock exchange may be suspended if the trading price of the security has increased or decreased to an extent beyond the trading band limit. A suspension will render it impossible for the relevant Investment Manager to liquidate positions and could thereby expose the sub-fund to significant losses.
- Investments in A-shares are dealt via Stock Connect, such dealing may be subject to additional risk factors. Stock Connect is a relatively new trading program. The relevant regulations are untested and subject to change. Stock Connect is subject to quota limitations which may restrict the sub-fund's ability to deal via Stock Connect on a timely basis. A security may also be recalled from the scope of Stock Connect. Furthermore, there are differences in trading days and hours and other trading restrictions. All these factors may impact the sub-fund's ability to implement its investment strategy effectively.
- A company's stock price may be adversely affected by changes in the company, its industry or economic environment and prices can change quickly. Equities typically involve higher risks than bonds and money market instruments.
- Investments in emerging markets entail increased liquidity and operational risks as these markets tend to be underdeveloped and more exposed to political, legal, tax and foreign exchange control risks.
