Benchmark index

The performance of the Sub-fund may be compared with the Russell 1000 Value Index as the primary index and the S&P 500 as the secondary index, expressed in USD, calculated with net dividends reinvested.

The Sub-fund is actively managed. The benchmark indices are used exclusively for comparison purposes.

The Sub-fund may invest up to 10% of its net assets in equities and equity-related securities issued by companies which do not have their registered office in the United States or which have a predominant part of their activity in a country other than the United States. Risk and reward profile

The indicator shown above is calculated based on historical data and, as such, may not be a reliable indicator of the Sub-fund's future risk profile. It is not certain that the risk and reward category shown will remain unchanged, and the classification may change over time. Category 1 does not mean that an investment is risk-free. Repayment of the initial investment is not guaranteed.

Due to insufficient historical data, the risk indicator incorporates simulated data based on a reference portfolio. Risk category 6 reflects a potential for very high gains and/or losses in the value of the portfolio. This is because of investments in equities on the American market.

Liquidity risk: A liquidity risk exists when specific investments are difficult to sell or buy. This could reduce the Sub-fund's returns if it is unable to enter into transactions under favourable conditions. This may result from events that are of unprecedented intensity and severity, such as pandemics or natural disasters.

Currency risk: The Sub-fund invests in foreign markets and may be exposed to fluctuations in exchange rates, which may increase or decrease the value of its investments.

Credit and interest rate risk associated with investments in bonds: Because it invests in bonds, money market instruments or other debt securities, the Sub-fund is exposed to the risk that the issuer may default. The probability of this occurring depends on the quality of the issuer. A rise in interest rates could result in a decrease in the value of the fixed-income securities held by the Sub-fund. As the price and yield of a bond trend in opposite directions, a fall in the price of the bond will be accompanied by an increase in its yield.

Risk associated with derivatives: The Sub-fund may make use of derivatives, i.e. financial instruments whose value depends on that of an underlying asset. Fluctuations in price of the underlying asset – even slight fluctuations – may result in significant changes in the price of the corresponding derivative. The use of over-the-counter derivatives exposes the Sub-fund to the risk of that the counterparty fails to honour, either partially or totally, its commitment to pay. This could lead to the Sub-fund incurring a financial loss.

Concentration risk: To the extent that the Sub-fund concentrates its investments in a country, market, industry or asset class, it might incur a capital loss following adverse events specifically affecting this country, market, industry or asset class.

Counterparty risk: The use of over-the-counter derivatives exposes the Sub-fund to the risk of that the counterparty fails to honour, either partially or totally, its commitment to pay. This could lead to the Sub-fund incurring a financial loss.

Operational risk: the Sub-fund may incur losses due to the failure of operational processes, particularly those relating to the custody of assets. The occurrence of any of these risks may negatively impact the net asset value.

The occurrence of any of these risks may negatively impact the net asset value.
