INVESTMENT POLICY

The objective of the Sub-Fund ("the Fund") is to increase the value of the Fund (capital appreciation) over the long term. The Fund intends to achieve this objective through investment in a portfolio of high-quality, long-term growth companies. The Fund will invest at least two-thirds of its assets in securities issued by companies that have their headquarters in, or principally carry out their activities in America or in securities issued or guaranteed by the American government.

This share class will use currency hedging with the aim of limiting the effect of changes in foreign exchange rates between the share class currency and the base currency of the Fund.

The Fund is actively managed. The index is provided for comparative purposes only.

The Fund is aimed at investors with a long-term investment horizon (typically 5 years or more).

FUND COMMENTARY

The US equities market was choppy in April, with signs that the US economy is in rude health. Strong consumer spending was seen in March and inflation also halted its deceleration, stabilising above 3%, exceeding the Federal Reserve's target level. These factors have led to both a reduction in rate cuts expected by bond investors in 2024 and a rise in 10-year bond yields, putting pressure on long duration assets. The geopolitical upheaval in the Middle East has increased volatility across most risk assets. These factors should not distract from the fact that all major regions are seeing easier financial conditions and an industrial rebound, as evidenced by the national and regional Purchasing Managers' Indices.

Q1'24 earnings releases are currently in full swing. Banks' interest income is under increasing pressure, largely due to factors beyond their control. This is one of the reasons why we avoid investing in this sector.

Among the portfolio holdings that have published their quarterly earnings, Johnson & Johnson reiterated its 2024 guidance, largely driven by a refreshed set of pharma products which should allow the company to grow despite losing patent protection on a major product, Stelara, in 2024.

Cintas (uniform rental company) reported a 10% increase in revenue and 1.2 percentage point of margin expansion, resulting from healthy volume and a very well-rounded operating model. Growth was driven by both its core and newer offerings (Fire, First Aid & Safety Services), whilst EPS was up 22%.

Digital advertising behemoths Meta and Alphabet reported strong top- and bottom-line growth. However, concerns arose as Meta raised its investment and cost outlook, fuelling fears of a costly AI investment cycle. Conversely, Alphabet alleviated such worries around its AI competitive positioning, with Search revenues reaccelerating again and positive comments being made around AI usage in Search.
