MANAGEMENT COMMENT as of 31/03/2015

The fund outperformed its benchmark over the first quarter thanks to strong stock selection decisions particularly in Financials, Industrials and Consumer Discretionary. Sector allocation was positive in Utilities, Consumer Discretionary and Health Care but detracted from excess return in Consumer Staples. Swedish industrial SKF (+42%) has clearly profited from the weak Swedish krone. The restructuring is also helping the sentiment. Renault (+40%) is up on the improving sentiment amongst European consumers and the strong growth of the Dacia brand. The worst contributors to performance during the quarter were commodity-related stocks like mining company Rio Tinto and Royal Dutch Shell. UK utilities SSE (+0%) and National Grid (+1%) are underperforming as investors fear an adverse development in regulation after the upcoming UK elections. We bought the utility companies Enel and E.ON as well as Lloyds (UK financial services company). We also sold SSE and Lifco over the quarter. We are positive on the long term outlook for financials and telecoms while energy, basic materials and utilities companies remain a clear underweight. The overall sentiment towards equities is likely to remain positive in 2015.
