What is this product?

Objective and Investment Strategy

Franklin Euro High Yield Fund (the "Fund") aims to earn high income and, secondarily, to increase the value of its investments over the medium to long term.

The Fund invests principally in:

- lower-quality debt securities issued by corporations located in any country, especially those denominated in euro

The Fund can invest to a lesser extent in:

- other types of euro-denominated securities, including equity securities and higher-quality debt securities
- derivatives for hedging and investment purposes
- securities in default (limited to 10% of assets)

The Fund will seek to remove currency risk by hedging non-euro investments to the euro. The investment team manages risk of corporate debt securities through credit analysis of securities issuers, which involves a detailed examination of individual companies and specific industries.

The Fund does not intend to invest extensively or primarily in financial derivative instruments for investment purposes.

What are the key risks?

Investment involves risks. Please refer to the offering document for details including the risk factors.

- Interest rate securities risk: Interest rates changes tend to be driven by prevailing economic, political and regulatory conditions as well as issuer-specific factors, impacting longer term securities more than short-term securities. While changes in interest rates may affect the Fund's interest income, such changes may positively or negatively affect the net asset value of the Fund's shares on a daily basis. A fixed income security's value will generally increase in value when interest rates fall and decrease in value when interest rates rise. Movements in interest rates may adversely affect a fixed income security's value and the Fund's net asset value. Conditions in the banking sector may also adversely affect interest rates and the prices of fixed income securities.
- Credit risk: Credit risk is the chance that an issuer will fail to make principal and interest payments when due. Changes in the financial condition of an issuer, changes in economic and political conditions in general, or changes in economic and political conditions specific to an issuer, are factors that may have an adverse impact on an issuer's credit quality and security value. Default can occur if an issuer fails to make principal and interest payments when due, which may result in a substantial loss to the Fund. Fixed income securities are also exposed to the risk of being downgraded, which can adversely affect and/or result in a substantial loss to the Fund.
- Low-rated, unrated or non-investment grade securities risk: The Fund may invest in lower rated, unrated or non-investment grade securities where the risk of failure to pay interest and/or principal is greater vs. higher rated securities, which may result in a substantial loss to the Fund.
- Defaulted debt securities risk: The Fund may invest in defaulted debt securities which have stopped payments on interest and/or principal in the belief such securities may resume payments in the future, but payment resumption may not occur and such securities go down further in value, which may result in a substantial loss to the Fund.
- Eurozone risk: The Fund may invest in the Eurozone. Mounting sovereign debt burdens (e.g. any sovereigns within the Eurozone, which default on their debts, may be forced to restructure their debts and faced difficulties in obtaining credit or refinancing) and slowing economic growth among European countries, combined with uncertainties in European financial markets, including feared or actual failures in the banking system and the possible break-up of the Eurozone and Euro currency, may adversely affect interest rates and the prices of securities across Europe and potentially other markets as well. These events may increase volatility, liquidity and currency risks associated with investments in Europe. The aforesaid economic and financial difficulties in Europe may spread across Europe and as a result, a single or several European countries may exit the Eurozone or a sovereign within the Eurozone may default on its debts. In any event of the break-up of the Eurozone or Euro currency, the Fund may be exposed to additional operational or performance risks. While the European governments, the European Central Bank, and other authorities are taking measures (e.g. undertaking economic reforms and imposing austerity measures on citizens) to address the current fiscal conditions, these measures may not have the desired effect and therefore the future stability and growth of Europe is uncertain. The performance and value of the Fund may be adversely affected should there be any adverse credit events (e.g. downgrade of the sovereign credit rating or default or bankruptcy of any Eurozone countries).

- Liquidity risk: The Fund may not be able to easily sell securities due to adverse market conditions or reduced value or creditworthiness of issuers in which it invests. Requests for redemption of shares, which are not listed, may be deferred or suspended. Reduced liquidity due to these factors may have an adverse impact on the net asset value of the Fund and on the ability of the Fund to meet redemption requests in a timely manner.
- Derivative risk: The Fund may invest in financial derivatives or structured products such as credit-linked securities, swaps (including credit default swaps and fixed income related total return swaps), futures, forwards, and options for hedging or investment purposes, or for efficient portfolio management (to reduce risk or cost). Derivative instruments involve cost, may be volatile, and may involve a leverage effect. A small investment in derivatives may give rise to material market exposure and result in higher risk than the initial investment, which may cause substantial loss to the Fund. The Fund does set aside cash or assets to meet future obligations related to derivatives. Performance and value of derivative instrument depend, at least in part, on the performance or value of the underlying asset. Risks include delivery failure, default by other party or the inability to close out a position because the trading market becomes illiquid. In addition, with respect to the use of derivatives for hedging, efficient portfolio management or investment purposes, there can be no assurances that the use of derivatives for these intended purposes will be achieved.
- Counterparty risk: When over-the-counter (OTC) or other bilateral contracts are entered into (such as OTC derivatives, repurchase agreements, security lending etc.), the Fund may find itself exposed to risks arising from the solvency of its counterparties and from their ability to respect the condition of these contracts and the Fund/investors may be adversely impacted.
- Volatility risk: Financial derivative instruments tend to be more volatile and less liquid than underlying investments to which they relate, which can have an adverse impact on the Fund.
- Dividend policy risk: The Fund's dividend policy allows for payment of dividends out of capital or effectively out of capital. Where this is done, it amounts to a return or withdrawal of part of an investor's original investment or from any capital gains attributable to that original investment. Any distributions involving payment of dividends out of the Fund's capital or payment of dividends effectively out of the Fund's capital (as the case may be) may result in an immediate reduction of the net asset value per share.
