Investment objective and strategy

The investment objective of Federated Hermes Short-Term U.S. Prime Fund is to achieve current income while maintaining stability of principal and liquidity. The fund pursues its objective by investing in a portfolio of high quality (i.e., awarded one of the two highest short-term credit ratings of each recognised statistical rating organisation that has rated the security or been determined by the Advisor to be of comparable quality to securities having such ratings) US dollar denominated short-term debt instruments which comply with the criteria for money market instruments as set out in the UCITS regulations. The maximum weighted average maturity of the securities in the fund's portfolio will not exceed 60 days. The weighted average life of the fund's portfolio will be limited to 120 days or less. The types of debt securities in which the fund may invest, but is not limited to, include transferable securities listed or traded on regulated markets such as commercial paper & notes, repurchase agreements, variable rate instruments, and bank instruments, as well as shares of other short-term money market funds. The Central Bank has authorised the fund to invest up to 100% of its assets in US Government Agency Securities and US Treasury Securities on the basis that such securities will be comprised of at least six different issues and any one issue will not account for more than 30% of the net assets of the fund. The fund is considered a Short-Term Money Market Fund in accordance with the requirements of the Central Bank Notices on money market funds. The securities in which the fund invests are restricted to securities which have a residual maturity until the legal redemption date of less than or equal to 397 days.

Investment manager's report

It is hard to live in the present in general, but that is particularly true in business and finance as so much is predicated on what comes next. Whether it is the big "E" in the equation for determining future value or the lower-case "e" of the word itself, expectations rule. But in the case of liquidity products, the here & now is attractive and the near & future looks good, too. For one, rates continue to be at historic highs. As expected, Federal Reserve's Federal Open Market Committee meeting mid-March left the target federal funds range at 5.25-5.5%, the level it has been since July. The Fed will eventually lower rates but based on the additional materials of the FOMC meeting rather than the statement, that action seems to be down the road. While the new Summary of Economic Projections (SEP) did not change its call for three quarter-point cuts this year it had forecast in December, we think the first ease will not arrive until July. And it is within the realm of possibility that the June SEP will indicate just two cuts will come by the end of 2024. Inflation's recent back-up reminds us that the last mile is the hardest. Retail sales show the economy is steady and the labor market remains robust. In fact, the SEP reflected slight upticks to growth and inflation projections. But they still are consistent with a picture of inflation eventually moving back to 2% amid solid economic growth. Having reeled in market expectations for aggressive easing, the Fed might need to hold the line taut to keep them hooked even though it has penciled in 75 basis points of cuts. At the end of the month, yields on 1-, 3-, 6- and 12-month U.S. Treasuries were 5.40%, 5.40%, 5.33% and 5.00%, respectively.

Definitions

Maturity: is the date on which the life of a transaction or financial instrument ends, after which it must either be renewed or it will cease to exist.

Total return represents the change in value of an investment after reinvesting all income and capital gains. Total return was not calculated according to the BVI method.

Weighted average life: is calculated in the same manner as the Weighted Average Maturity (WAM), but is based solely on the periods of time remaining until the securities held in the fund's portfolio (a) are scheduled to be repaid or (b) would be repaid upon a demand by the fund without reference to when interest rates of securities within the fund are scheduled to be readjusted.

Weighted average maturity: is the mean average of the periods of time remaining until the securities held in the fund's portfolio (a) are scheduled to be repaid, (b) would be repaid upon a demand by the fund or (c) are scheduled to have their interest rate readjusted to reflect current market rates. Securities with adjustable rates payable upon demand are treated as maturing on the earlier of the two dates if their scheduled maturity is 397 days or less, and the later of the two dates if their scheduled maturity is more than 397 days. The mean is weighted based on the percentage of the amortized cost of the portfolio invested in each period.
