Quarter report

1. Market review

In the third quarter, the credit crisis that had started in the US housing market finally developed into an international financial crisis with repercussions on the global economy. In the first half of 2008, investors were still afraid of rising inflation rates and only recognised the deflationary effects of a credit crisis at a late stage. In the meantime, "Japan anxiety" is spreading. The interest rates for government bonds are falling, the risk mark-ups for corporate bonds are reaching new peaks, banks are hardly prepared to grant loans any more and profit expectations must be lowered. The closed credit market and the high level of debt in the financial sector are forcing a rigorous reduction of positions, accordingly leading to falling market prices in all risk-prone asset classes. In this environment, the world equity market lost 16% in value in USD, which is reduced to 7% in CHF thanks to the stronger USD. The biggest losers were those that had profited from rising inflation, such as oil producers (-18%), commodities (-28%), utilities (-9%), as well as the capital goods industry (-10%). Naturally enough, less cyclical sectors, such as household products (+18%), foodstuffs (+8%) or pharmaceuticals (+7%), did better. In general, American equities (-1% in CHF) suffered less than European ones (-14%) did. Emerging markets, such as Latin America (-26%) or Asia ex Japan (-17%), were the great losers. Large cap growth stocks once again outperformed the overall market.

2. Performance review

The development of the key quantitative factors of valuation, quality and price development reversed in the second half of July. They developed against the historical trend to a rarely perceived extent. As a result, the fund had a bad start into the quarter. It was only in September that these factors developed again as expected. However, the profits were cancelled out again by the distortions in financials so that it was impossible to catch up in the last two months.

Note concerning performance

Past performance is no indication of future performance and does not guarantee success in the future. The performance data assume that any dividends will be reinvested and do not take account of commission and costs charged for issuing and redemption of units. The calculation is performed in the fund's currency of account CHF. Returns in other currencies may rise or fall as a result of currency fluctuations.

3. Outlook

The portfolio development corresponded to the results of our quantitative models, which provide good results in the long term. The portfolio is also holding up better than the corresponding hedge fund strategies. We will reduce the risk slightly as our possibility of selling unattractive stocks short has been markedly restricted by the regulatory authorities.

Opportunities/risks

All investments involve risk, especially with regard to fluctuations in value and returns. In addition, investments in foreign currencies are subject to exchange rate fluctuations. The risks are described in detail in the sales prospectus.
