Global Energy

A Accumulation Share Class

Investment Objective, Policy and Risk

To provide capital growth primarily through investment in securities of companies active in the energy sector.

The value of investments and the income from them may go down as well as up and investors may not get back the amounts originally invested. Exchange rate changes may cause the value of any foreign investments to rise or fall. Investments in equities are subject to market risk and, potentially, to currency exchange rate risk. This fund may use financial derivative instruments as a part of the investment process. This may increase the fund's price volatility by amplifying market events.

Fund Overview

High crude oil prices may have focused the spotlight on global energy companies in recent years, but the longer-term attraction of investing in this part of the market is based on a combination of tight supply and high demand. Traditional sources of oil and natural gas remain difficult to access due to a mixture of politics and geology. Energy demand, however, remains strong throughout the world and has been driven even higher by growth in emerging market economies.

Within the fund, we focus on only our highest conviction investment ideas, which largely comprise traditional oil and gas-based companies, but also can include companies involved in infrastructure, utilities, renewable and alternative energy. Many of these companies have enjoyed increasing demand, a steady stream of new orders and higher operating margins. Despite today's high oil prices, we believe that energy is an ongoing investment theme, which should continue to provide compelling returns for investors especially over the long term.
